PROGRAM OVERVIEW

A highly interactive simulation-based experience designed to help participants understand the relationship between income, expenses, choices, financial management, and long-term well-being.

Participants step into different financial realities, manage monthly income and commitments, make lifestyle and investment choices, and navigate unexpected situations — experiencing the consequences of their decisions as the simulation progresses.

The focus isn't on getting rich overnight. It's about understanding one simple reality:

Your financial reality comes with the choices you make.

LEARNING MODULES

1. Understanding Your Financial Reality

Exploring income, expenses, assets, liabilities, financial responsibilities, and the realities that shape everyday financial decisions.

2. The Power of Financial Management

Understanding why increasing income is only one part of the equation, and how effective management can influence financial well-being.

3. Choices, Trade-offs & Consequences

Experiencing real-life decisions around lifestyle, family, social commitments, savings, investments, and unexpected situations — and seeing how each choice creates an impact.

LEARNING MODULES

4. Short-Term vs Long-Term Thinking

Navigating the tension between immediate gratification and long-term stability while making decisions within limited resources.

5. Financial Leakages & Growth

Identifying small spending patterns that can create long-term pressure and recognizing opportunities to build healthier financial habits.

6. The Reality Check

Reflecting on individual and team decisions to uncover financial behaviors, decision-making patterns, and the connection between the choices you make and the financial reality you create.
